English Youths for Australian Farms

Premier Barwell, of South Australia, is attempting to recruit 6,000 boys in England between the ages of 16 and 18 for apprenticeship to South Australian farmers, under government guardianship.

The boys are wanted to replace the 6,000 South Australians killed during the war.

Each boy will be paid four shillings a week for pocket money, the remainder of his earnings being placed to his credit in the state treasury, where it will earn 4 1/2 per cent. interest, the whole sum being to be paid over to him when he is 21 years of age.

This amount will enable him to become an independent farmer.

Two Calgary Scouts Decorated for Bravery

At the Boy Scouts' display, which is being held in the afternoon on March 29, two local scouts will be given awards for bravery. These two boys, scout Sydney Weller and scout Eugene Lohmeyer, rescued a brother scout when he was in danger of drowning in the Kibow river last summer.

Scout Weller will be presented with the scout medal and bar, donated by the Hamilton Boy Scout Council, and a personal letter from L. J. W. Robertson, chief commissioner for Canada.

Scout Lohmeyer will receive a certificate of merit, signed by the same official.

Both of the Scouts are members of the Seventh Troop of this city, Calgary Herald.

Four Killed When Ferry Boat Boiler Explodes

Four men lost their lives when a ferry boat, owned by C. J. G. Co., operating between this town and Fort Hays, exploded at two o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The ferry, which was loaded with passengers and freight, was in the middle of the river when the boiler exploded, sending the boat and its cargo to the bottom.

The four men who were on board were killed instantly.

YOUNG ROBBER DRAWS 20 YEARS

COUNTING BROOMS

"You said at first that you were struck with a broom. Now you say there were two brooms," remarked the clerk to a witness at Tottenham Court. Man. So there was. She had one, and another woman had another. They had a broom in each hand. Clerk: If they had one in each hand there were four. Now, was it two and two or four and two? Man: Yes, four. Clerk: That's eight. What do you mean? Man: Well, there were two brooms. Clerk: If you are sure? Man: Yes, because they held one in each hand. The clerk gave it up.

Melon-Growing in the Okanagan

There is a certain market-gardener at Summerland, a little settlement on the shores of the Okanagan Lake in British Columbia, who has made his ten acres famous for cantaloupes, water melons, and other plants and vegetables. He has been successful in his business for many years, and his produce is sold in the local markets.

Mr. A. McLachlan in his winter lettuce house, Summerland, B.C.

Localities that have acquired a taste for these delicacies.

The grower's "long wait" is saved by his own seed and he has bred distinct strains of peppers, cucumbers and melons.

The seed is sown under glass in mid-April and is transplanted twice before being set out in the field between the 5th and 15th of June. It is then ready to fruit at the end of August.

Egg-plants and peppers are profitable too, in a small way, and about a acre of the first and a acre of the latter is grown and shipped regularly to certain stores in market.

EDUCATION ALONG PEACE

(Third of the series by C. H. Axelson, Bilingual.)

So far our education along peace lines has been a continued attempt to substitute peaceful methods in the settlement of national and international differences. But now efforts must also be made through the means of education by which the causes of war can be eliminated, because we know from actual experience that any education that does not fill that function is incomplete. It is therefore world war to accomplish the purpose for which it was started. Just when the world was about to attempt at damming a river by an earthen dam in the hope of stopping its flow, in the course of time the accumulating water would either break the dam or flow over the top, and the result would be the same.

Therefore, in reviewing past history which is principally taken up with a account of wars, we must endeavor to understand the human condition that produced them in accordance with that by modern historians recognized as "the law of the human mind." It is not a law of "the human mind" but a law of "the human mind" that has been fought for many years and will be fought for many years to come. It is a law of "the human mind" that has been fought for many years and will be fought for many years to come.

the common people through lack of proper knowledge have become the victims of a new form of exploitation, for which the instruments of production and distribution are privately owned, where the people who control themselves are free men are daily competing with one another in efforts to secure jobs for which the remuneration is so small that on an average they can provide enough to live on a decent existence, and the competition for it is so great that it is so very difficult to hold, under this system the producers only receive a portion of what they produce, the highest portion falls into the hands of the employers, speculators and the money lenders, and in order to realize any profit must find for its markets in which to sell the commodities the producers have created above their wages. It is for that reason that all modern wars are conflicts for obtaining of new markets in which to dispose of these surplus goods. The Spanish-American war offers a good illustration. The cry was raised about the "crisis of the Spanish to the Cubans." The American newspapers sent their reporters and cartoonists over to work up public opinion in favor of war. During which it was found that the reason for the war was not the "crisis of the Spanish to the Cubans," but the fact that the United States was in need of new markets for its surplus goods. The Spanish-American war was a war for the purpose of creating new markets for the surplus goods of the United States.

Two little girls had been playing together some, on the morning, but, as the day advanced, they began to quarrel. One of the girls said: "Your mamma's name isn't 'get new dress, nice hair'." Her playing through a moon, and then she said: "Your mamma can take a 'look-out' mine can."
